A. C. MACLAREN ON CRICKET.*

The England captain has produced a very readable little book which deserves to be popular. The chapters devoted to the practical side of the game never become dull, for his remarks are interspersed with interesting comments concerning well-known players. It is worthy of note that Mr. players. It is worthy of note that Mr. MacLaren opines that ' self-taught cricketers are always superior to the taught ones, and always will be, for a great batsman invariably has some peculiarity, which conduces to his prominence, which no coaching can teach." He gives much advice which should prove of value to young cricketers, whilst his remarks on "Three-Day Test Matches" and "Memorable Matches I Have Played In" are decidedly interesting. In the chapter entitled "Things That Go to Win a Match" the author states that "The 1902 Test Match at the Oval was, in my opinion, won by Jessop, owing to running Trumper out in the second innings." Most followers of the game consider that England's success on that occasion by a wicket was due chiefly to Jessop's wonderful inniugs of 101 on the third afternoon.

NEWCASTLE DAILY JOURNAL: THURSDAY, FRIDAY 24,25 JUNE 1909-1.

NOR" "HUMBERLAND v. NOTTS, II.

Short Day's Play at the County Ground.

Very little progress was made at the County Ground, Jesmond, yesterday, in the match between Northumberland and the second eleven of Notts. During the interval there was a violent thunderstorm with ver cheavy rain, leaving pools of waser, on the wicket, and though these quickly disappeared after-wards, frequent inspections of the pitch by the exp-tains and umpires found it to be really not in a fit condition for play. In the little time in the morning in which oricket was possible, the Notits team fared none too well for

In the little time in the morning in which oricket was possible, the Notts team fared none to well for a time, but a productive stand for the seventh wicket placed the side in a better position. Milne sarily met with great success, the first four wickets, with only 29 scored, being secured off his bowling, the next three wickets falling to the bowling of C. M. Stinner with a score of only 41 reached. No further success was met with by these bowlers, however, Stapleton and Whysall now making a good stand, and, despite the Rev H. White, W. G. Brown and R. Foe or taking a turn in the attack, the erore had reached 100 when the huncheon interval arrived with a heavy sform breaking over the ground. The idle afternoon was much to be regretted, for the engagement had attracted a large growd. Boore
