Mon. v. Glamorganshire.

The match was resumed on the Newport Cricket Ground this morning at eleven o'clock, when 125 behind on the first innings, Monmouthshire had to follow on. They opened with Silverlock and Morris to the bowling of Hacker and Creber, and it was soon apparent that both bowlers had rediscovered the "top" for as 13 Malby got his leg in front of a wicket one, and on the next being doubled, Malby's was not out. Four wickets were down for 22, and the set went up in an hour with the two Glamorgans batsmen. Eleven runs later "G. G." was smartly caught by Davy and Ince, the new women, and dismissed after making only 1. A. C. R. David returned Creber and J. Chandless, Hacker, but "G. G." and Captain Giles made eight of this, and the hundred was sent up in an hour and a half, the pair playing grand all round cricket. Just before lunch, however, Phillips was smartly caught by the slip by Morris after making 22. The batsmen put on 101 runs. Phillips' innings including one R. and views 15. In the next over Captain Giles was smartly cramped by Norman Ribbes after a well-played 20, which included one R. and views 15. Eight wickets were down for 174.

Two innings' play after luncheon sufficed to bring the innings to a close, Glamorgan winning 6 wickets and three runs.

GLAMORGAN WON BY AN INNINGS AND 3 RUNS

was 7 for 63, when neither Hirst nor Rhodes, who were then at the top of their form, could get a wicket. In the same match and on the previous day Lockwood notched a century.

What is the matter with Yorkshire? When the curtain rang down at Canterbury they had gathered only two points out of a possible twenty-five in five successive matches, and they were lucky to secure them. Yet in the early days of this season they won eight county matches off the reel, and looked like a side to be seriously reckoned with. Of late, however, Hirst's bowling has lost its sting, and there is nobody to take his place. Is he drawing to the close of his career? Or does he merely need a good rest after a most exhausting season? It would be fulsome flattery to say that my old county is as great as it was in its Championship years, but I am strongly of opinion that it still possesses splendid ability. Its chief desideratum is a leader to call forth that ability. Had Lord Hawke continued in office, Yorkshire's season's results would have been very different. The real worth of a captain is his power to inspire, apart altogether from his merits as a cricketer. Of course, so much the better if he is worth his place in an eleven as a run-getter. It may take years to discover the man worthy to stand in his Lordship's shoes. If an amateur be not forthcoming, why not delegate this honour to Hirst?

Strudwick's match needs no comment, or, at most, only a passing word. I would not have missed the last afternoon for a king's ransom. Warwickshire will have good reason to underscore this match, for the undoing of Kent made their fortune. Somebody remarked to me that Strudwick, when keeping wicket, "showed off." No, was my rejoinder, he is showy, if you will, indulges in sundry little flourishes which are pretty to watch. And why shouldn't he, as long as he is a perfect master of his craft? The fact is, he is an artist, not merely an artisan. I dare say his stumping would be quite as effective without his bye-play, but it would not be as attractive to me. A sword will do its work if it has a keen edge, but that is no reason why it should not bear fantastic tracery. The wondrous etching on a rock does not add to its solidity, but it increases its charm to the spectator. Strudwick reminds me of the Hon. Alfred Lyttelton behind the stumps; both add grace to their work, combine the useful with the ornamental. Yes, the stumpers were in evidence in that match. Huish's praises have been so loudly sung that there is no need here to swell the chorus. And Woolley's bowling—has that ever been surpassed in a Championship match? was the question put to me by sundry enthusiasts. So let me wind up these notches with a few statistics which I have not seen noted in the daily or weekly press. And six wickets shall be the minimum number in my selection. We will not go further back than 1873 when the County Championship began. It will be seen that Woolley's 7 wickets for 9 runs were not a record.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A. K. SHAPCOTE.—Duly noted. Many thanks.

A. H. JENKINS.—He did not play for the side in 1899. In 1900 his figures were 44-2-96-983-23-10 and, in 1901, 37-2-53-681-19-45. In all first-class matches 48-3-96-1,059-23-53 and 38-2-53-694-19-27 respectively.

EDWARD NORRIS.—Pressure on space is the only reason why they can be given only occasionally.

NORTHANTS v. WARWICKSHIRE.

WEEK-END CRICKET.

WARWICKSHIRE GAIN THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

Played at Northampton on August 26, 28 and 29 and won by Warwickshire by an innings and 38 runs. By their success in this match Warwickshire made sure of first place among the counties, their position being secure whatever the result of the game at Leyton to-day between Essex and Kent. The home side were much handicapped by the absence of East and Wells and were put out for 73 on a good wicket. Warwickshire then went right ahead and at the end of the first day had made 226 for six wickets. They took the lead during a second-wicket stand of 82 by Stephens and Charlesworth. The latter, batting admirably for three hours and a-half, hit seventeen 4's and made only one mistake—a chance to long-field when 124. Baker, though scoring only 26, helped to add 61 and Warwickshire gained the winning lead of 208. In their second innings Northants., despite a stand of 52 by Seymour and Vials and useful scores by Haywood, Smith and J. S. Denton, were dismissed for 175 and beaten as stated. Foster did not make a run in the match, but he took eleven wickets for 81. Score and analysis:
