(Last season: Durham won by an innings and 43 runs.)

At Norwich in dull, cheerless weather. T. Coulson, the Durham skipper, stood down from the selected twelve players. C. Adamson captaining the side. The wicket was on the soft side, which made scoring throughout rather slow. Durham batted first, and Harrison hit freely for his runs. Half the side were out for 62, when Bewick joined Kinch. The pair made a determined stand, adding 51. Kinch, who batted seventy minutes, played a fine innings, scoring freely all round the wicket. He was eventually caught in the long field. He hit five 4's and three 3's. The last four wickets fell for 13 runs, and the innings lasted two and a half hours. Raikes, bowling leg breaks, proved most successful for Norfolk, with seven for 61.

Norfolk made a disastrous start, Morris and Hendren each claiming a victim in their first overs. Stevens, coming in second wicket down, immediately settled down, and playing beautiful cricket saved his side from utter disaster. Six wickets were down for 44. Fulcher, however, helped Stevens to add 28, and Ames 27 for the ninth wicket. The innings lasted an hour and fifty minutes. Stevens, ninth out, hit one 6, five 4's, and five 3's. Morris bowled finely, and had seven for 45, while Hendren, from whom Stevens scored 14 in the last over, also did well.

Durham, 39 runs on, went in again, and when play was stopped owing to bad light, fifteen minutes before time, had scored 76 for five. They are thus 115 on with five wickets in hand. Score and analysis:—

DURHAM ... 1st inns., 147; 2nd inns., 107.
 NORFOLK ... 1st inns., 108; 2nd inns., 60.

(Last season: Durham won by an innings and 43 runs.)

The weather at Norwich was more agreeable yesterday, the sun putting in an appearance, and this match was resumed. Bewick joined Healey, the overnight not-out, Raikes and Allsopp bowling. Healey batted steadily, but both Bewick and Smith were out to faulty strokes. Radcliffe took his thumb split in the last over on Monday, but pluckily came in to bat and kept his wicket up for a while. The remaining five wickets added 38 runs, Norfolk thus requiring 147 to win. Allsopp bowled well, getting a lot of swerve on, and Raikes' leg breaks were always troublesome.

Norfolk again made a bad start, Smith making an excellent catch off Morris' second ball, thus disposing of Thurman. Geoffrey Stevens, one of the finest bats, if not the finest, playing in Minor County cricket, again did well. He lost Collinson at 22, and was himself out seven runs later, Morris claiming him as his third victim. A not here set in, and the whole side were out for the poor total of 60, leaving Durham victorious by 86 runs. Morris bowled in magnificent form, his attack having a leading share in Durham's triumph. Score and analysis:—

Tunbridge Wells Cricket.

Although sixty-six years have passed since the Kent eleven first took the field at Tunbridge Wells, the game had been played in that beautiful spot over a hundred years earlier. In a pamphlet published as far back as the reign of George II. the occupations of the visitors were described at some length, and in the course of the account it was stated that "The outdoor amusements are cricketing, horse races, and other diversions; such as walking, riding and airing in carriages on the contiguous heaths and commons, or excursions to some of the most remarkable places in the environs of the Wells." So much for ancient history. Now let us turn to more modern times.

We have said that the first occasion on which the Kent eleven took the field at Tunbridge Wells was in 1845. That was against their near and dear neighbours, Sussex, who, after a splendidly-contested game, pulled through by seven runs, although dismissed for 38 by Alfred Mynn and Hillyer in their second innings. The match was played on the Common, where the wickets provided were, of course, of a very different nature from those in use to-day: on the rough and bumpy pitches of those times large scores were seldom chronicled.

[Hawkins & Co., Brighton.]

for the reason that the ground partook so much of the Graupian Hills that a civil engineer alone could do justice to it. In the match referred to there were 69 extras and the highest score made for either side was Charles Hammond's 31 not out in the first innings of Sussex. Almost needless to add—though it is not suggested that the roughness of the wicket had anything to do with the matter—not one of the twenty-two players who took part in that match of 1845 survives.

For eight years Sussex paid an annual visit to Tunbridge Wells, winning three matches, losing four and drawing one. Then, in 1853, Kent and Sussex combined forces and met England in a game which was left unfinished. The match was marked by some rather remarkable bowling on the part of old William Clarke, of Nottingham, who was then in his fifty-fifth year. In the first innings of the counties he bowled 53 successive balls without being scored from, and shortly after 55 more, being hit for a 2 and two 3's between the two feats. It was at Tunbridge Wells 51 years later, though not on the same ground, that Blythe did something similar in the match with Sussex, for, bowling with wonderful (and characteristic) accuracy, he delivered his first twelve overs (72 balls) for one run, that being all that was scored from him in an hour.

Another noteworthy bowling feat performed at Tunbridge Wells was chronicled in 1878, when, in the second innings of Sussex, Mr. A. Penn obtained six wickets for three runs. The players he dismissed were Messrs. A. W. Anstruther, J. M. Mare, Herbert Whitfield, W. A. Bettesworth and C. A. Brown and James Phillips. Almost thirty years later—in 1906, to be exact—Mr. J. W. H. T. Douglas, whilst playing at Tunbridge Wells for Essex, sent down a curious over in the course of which Seymour played on to a no-ball, Huish was caught off another, Seymour was missed by Mr. P. A. Perrin and Huish was bowled.

One might fill many columns in dilating upon the many unusual and remarkable incidents recorded in inter-county cricket at Tunbridge Wells, but particulars of only a few others can be recorded now owing to considerations of space. In the match with Sussex in 1858 George Bennett was injured and his place in the field was taken by John Sands, who made as many as four catches in the second innings of Kent's opponents. In 1876, when Sussex were beaten by one wicket, the finish was most exciting. Twenty-seven runs were required when Henty went in, last man, and joined Lord Harris. The number was successfully obtained, the latter (84) making the majority of the runs and Henty carrying out his bat for 4. It was in this match that Harry Phillips, whilst keeping wicket to the fast bowling of Mr. C. A. Brown, missed the ball and had his nose broken. When Surrey were the visitors in 1880 Harry Jupp batted an hour and a quarter for 5 runs, an innings which compared strangely with that against Somerset four seasons later by Mr. Frank Marchant, who, in the course of an innings of 77, hit twenty-one threes.

Seldom does a Week take place without something noteworthy being chronicled. Last year, as all who follow the game at all closely will remember, Kent beat Somerset by 306 runs and Lancashire by 321, after "declaring" with five wickets in hand. It was in the latter match that Humphreys scored 77 and 200 not out, and that W. A. J. West, who was umpiring, stood at point, instead of at square-leg, because Dean, who was bowling, had four men stationed on the on-side—a very reasonable procedure on West's part.

Appended is a table summarising the results of the forty-six matches played at Tunbridge Wells by Kent:—
